Use Your Flex Spending For LASIK®

Flex Spending Accounts (also known as FSAs, FSA Debit Cards, Medical Expense FSAs or Cafeteria Plans) were created by the IRS to allow individuals to use pre-tax funds to pay for unreimbursed medical expenses. Participants typically put aside funds each year for expenses like braces, glasses and other medical incidentals which are "out-of-pocket" — that is, not covered by insurance.

FSAs are a great way to help pay for LASIK® Vision Correction at the Campbell Cunningham Laser Center.

If you have funds in your Flex Spending Account, simply call the Campbell Cunningham Laser Center on Weisgarber Road in West Knoxville for a free consultation. If you're a good candidate for LASIK, we can schedule your procedure and get you on the road to better vision.

If you don't currently have an FSA, or an HSA (Health Savings Account), you may want to look into it. You might also check to see if your company offers Health Reimbursement Accounts to employees. All of these plans are similar in that they allow you to use funds before income taxes and other deductions have been made, effectively lowering the cost of LASIK for you.

Staff members at the Campbell Cunningham Laser Center can help familiarize you with these plans, as well as our own 2-Year, Same-as-Cash Financing Program.

The bottom line is: life after LASIK may be much more affordable than you think.

For a free consultation and to find out if LASIK® is right for you, call 588-3937.

Tony Basilio
Knoxville, TN

Local sports radio host Tony Basilio is a frequent guest at the Campbell Cunningham Laser Center. But not for glasses or contacts.

"I remember how brutal those contact lenses were. Now, I don't have to worry about those things thanks to the LASIK procedure. I remember waking up that next day and being able to see. Really see!"

Basilio always relates his experiences to sports: "I remember looking at the checkerboard end zone at Neyland Stadium and thinking that that's what they're supposed to look like. Incredible!"
