LASIK® vs. Contacts

For most contact lens wearers, comfort is a huge and ongoing issue. If you've just spent another Fall in East Tennessee fighting seasonal allergies and trying to keep your contacts clear of pollen and dust, you may be ready to think about LASIK® vision correction. LASIK is often the choice for people who are tired of wearing contact lens or who have trouble with contacts.

For many people, LASIK can reduce or eliminate the need for corrective lenses by re-shaping the cornea to improve vision. Here are just a few of the reasons why people choose LASIK over contacts.

Comfort

For some people, simply placing contact lenses in the eyes or removing them can be an ordeal. LASIK vision correction can provide relief from that issue.

Correction

For many patients, LASIK can provide better vision correction than contact lenses, especially for those who require specialty lenses or contacts.

Cost

Over time, the cost of contact lenses, eye examinations, and treatment supplies can add up. LASIK vision correction, while more expensive initially, can be a better investment in your vision long-term.

Tony Basilio

Local sports radio host Tony Basilio is a frequent guest at the Campbell Cunningham Laser Center. But not for glasses or contacts. "I remember how brutal those contact lenses were. Especially during allergy season! Now, I don't have to worry about those things thanks to the LASIK procedure at the Campbell Cunningham Laser Center."

"I remember waking up that next day and being able to see. Really see. I'm somebody who wore glasses everyday since I was...six? So, you have to understand. It was a revelation!"

Basilio always relates his experiences to sports: "I remember looking at the checker-board end zone at Neyland Stadium and thinking that that's what they're supposed to look like. Incredible!"
